(By United Press)

London, May 8.--While Germany is glated over the sweeping success of her submarine warfare in the sinking of the Lusitania, all England stands appalled
at the terrible disaster.

LOSS OF LIFE MAY TOTAL 1300

The loss of life of the great liner
Lusitania may reach more than 1300.

Only 700 have been rescued up to this time from the water around old Kin-sale head, where the vessel was twice torpedoed by undersea boats.

Dispatches of the latest figures are:

Total on board	2049
Total rescued	703

Americans Among the Missing

No list of survivors contains the names of Alfred Vanderbilt, Charles Froman, Charles Klein and Elbert Hubbard.

An enormous crowd besieged the office of the Cunard line all night and increase at daybreak inquiring for lost friends or relatives.

Ship Should Have Been Protected

Many of them angrily asked why the vessel had no escort of torpedo destroyers in view of the fact that they were warned that the vessel would be torpedoed.

Lord Charles Beresford will question Premier Asquith
on the sinking of the Lusitania and why there was no escort of destroyers.

Many Die of Shock

Many naval boats are patrolling the sea in search of bodies, but this is distressful work now.

The list of deaths has been increased by more than a score at Queenstown among those who were rescued, on account of shock and collapse.

German People Rejoice

Copenhagen dispatches say that Berlin newspapers told in head lines of colossal type of the sinking of the Lusitania.

The editorials point out that Germany believes that England received just what she deserved.

The tug Storm Cock has returned to Queenstown, bringing about 150 survivors of the Lusitania, principally passengers, among whom were many women, several of the crew and one steward.

Describing the experience of the Lusitania the steward said:

"The passengers were at lunch when a submarine came up and fired two torpedoes, which struck the Lusitania on the starboard side, one forward and the other in the engine room. They caused terrific explosions.

Passengers Take to Boats

"Captain Turner immediately ordered the boats out.
The ship began to list badly immediately.

The Cunard liner Lusitania, which was sunk by a German submarine Friday off the coast of Ireland, carried 184 Americans and had a total passenger list of 2067 persons. It is believed that between 800 and 100 perished when the ship went down. The vessel was deliberately torpedoed by the Germans, without warning.

and 500 passengers entered them. The boat in which I was, approached the land with three other boats and we were picked up shortly after 4 o'clock by the Storm Cock.

New York, May 8.--Cunard line officials announced the receipt of advices that Captain Turner, First Officer Jones, Second Officer Lewis, the second and third engineers and 51
members of the crew have been rescued.

Captain Turner is in a hotel in Queenstown, suffering from the shock.
As yet there has been no trace found of Charles Frohman or Albert

Steamer New York Has Not Been Sunk

(By United Press)

London, May 8.--American line officials this afternoon scouted the rumor that the steamship New York, of their line, had been torpedoed.

They said they were not worried in the least and that the excitement was due to the worry and anxiety arising from the destruction of Lusitania.

Later dispatches received by them say that the New York is safe in the Irish sea.

And the President Goes Golfing Today

Washington, May 8.--The state department today asked Ambassador Page at London for a report of the sinking of the Lusitania based on a statement of the captains of the submarine who made the attack.

President Goes Golfing

As there was no cabinet meeting
today, President Wilson went golfing at 9 a. m. The police headquarters had no call from the German embassy for special protection, but is keeping a close watch on the situation.

Germans Claim Ship Had Been Armed

WINDING UP THE EVIDENCE IN THE PELLERTI CASE

Commonwealth Believed to Have Made Out a Strong Case Against Prisoner

Dr. Pollum Shows That the Woodland
Woman Died of Strangulation-- Charles Pellerti Testifies That He Had Heard Joe Make Threats Against His Wife.

When the court resumed the trial
of Joe Pellerti for the alleged murder of his wife at the home of his brother, Charles, on the night of April 13-14 last, yesterday after the noon recess, the first witness called by the commonwealth was Dr. Pol-lum, county coroner, who had charge of the inquest. The doctor testified as to the normality of the different parts and organs of the body and named three evidences of violence having been used. These were that there was a hemorrhage of the capillaries between the epidermis and the blood in one ear, and that there was
blood in one ear, and that there was
a bad clot of blood on the night eye.

The counsel for the defense gave the doctor a thorough cross-examination as to the evidences of strangulation generally, to which the doctor replied very clearly that there were no fixed characteristics, but he felt quite certain that the death of Mrs. Pellerti was the result of strangulation, though none of the elements offered by the defense were present in the case.

Dr. J. W. Gordon, of this city, who assisted Dr. Pollum, gave practically the same information as the coroner.

Mrs. Charles Pellerti, who is an American was then called upon and testified that she and Joe had not been friendly since shortly after her marriage to Charles, as Joe had opposed Charles marrying her.

Joe's brother Charles gave some damaging evidence against the prisoner when he told of having heard him make threats against his wife.
Tony Pellerti was the next witness presented by the commonwealth and he testified to being called to the house at about 9 o'clock in the morning and told of the position of the body as it lay in the bed, and also told of seeing cloth or handkerchiefs around her head and neck.

Several men who boarded with Charles told of how they had heard Joe threaten the life of his wife and that "if she didn't kill herself, he would."

A woman who lived in the same
double house with them at Leland, which is near Utahville, testified as to her having heard them quarrel and to the night heard Rosa crying.

This morning court began at 8:45
that the trial might be hurried today.
The witnesses who were called were Sherrill McCloskey, Dr. Pollum, Mrs.
Charles Pellerti and Joe's wife, of whom it is hinted that Rosa was jealous.

The commonwealth then rested and the plan of defense was set forth to the jury by W. C. Miller, Esq. The prisoner himself was then called to the stand.

MOTHER'S DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Mother's Day, which will be observed generally tomorrow, was originated seven years ago by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia. Miss Jarvis' suggestion that Mother be honored once a year at least was taken up by congress, which gave its sanction to the occasion.

The usual custom of honoring Mother is by wearing carnations,
white ones, if possible, but any color if white cannot be procured. Every son and daughter should signify their approval of the day and their respect for Mother by wearing a carnation in her honor tomorrow. In addition to wearing the carnation children should make a special effort to prove to their mothers, if these be still living, that they appreciate her self-sacrifices, love and patience.

Mother's day will be observed in the churches, many of which will have special programs for the occasion.

CITIZENS WILL WORK ON ROADS

"Good Roads Day"
To be Observed
On May 26

PUBLIC CAN ASSIST

Clearfield County's Highways
Should be Made the Best
in Pennsylvania

Central Executive Committee Will Formulate Plans for Road Improvement--County to be Divided Into Districts and Township Supervisors
and Local Committees in Each Township Will Carry on the Good Work.

Following the policy adopted by Governor Brumbaugh in his planning and by his actions since becoming chief executive of the commonwealth,
May 26 has been set aside as "Good Roads Day" throughout the state.
This method of road improvement has been tried in other states, and has always produced excellent and lasting results.

In the governor's proclamation, he has called upon all citizens of the commonwealth to assist in the improvement and has ordered the state highway department to give all the assistance possible.

Nightmen Volunteers
Fifteen of the citizens of Clearfield road advocates of this county have volunteered to serve as nightmen executive committee, which will have charge of all arrangements. The meeting of this committee will be held on Monday, May 10, in the office of W.
D. Meyers, assistant engineer, state highway department in the Clearfield Trust Co. building. At this meeting the committee will confer with the officers of the Township Supervisors association and plans will be formulated and will be published in this paper on Tuesday, May 11.

Will District County
The county will be divided into districts and local committees appointed to take charge of the work in their respective localities. It will be their duty to superintend the work of the men who volunteer for service in their section and place the road assigned to them in as good condition as possible.
The roads to be worked upon will be designated by the executive committee. This committee now takes the opportunity of calling on all citizens of this county to assist and cooperate in this work, as it is only by the co-operation of each and every individual that an undertaking of so great and far-reaching a character can be a success.

Keep up Good Work
While "Good Roads Day" will be observed in the letter on May 26, the spirit should be observed every day.
Let each man who volunteers to work on this date resolve that he will make this event a memorable one. Let him also resolve that he will have more "Good Roads Days" and not observe them only on days appointed by the governor or any other official of the state county or township, but appoint the day himself. If there be a day or part of a day when you have nothing to occupy your time go out on the road and do a little work for the traveling public.
This will cause you no great inconvenience and will be a benefit to a large number.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Both baseball games scheduled for last evening had to be postponed on account of the rain.

Eight of the members, under the leadership of Piquette Stinson,

Tomorrow being "Mother's Day", every member is requested to wear a white carnation for mother's sake.

Fear the Transylvania Will Meet Similar Fate

(By United Press)

New York, May 8.--The German embassy re-advised in New York papers today that travel to Great Britain and France was dangerous and that all persons taking passage on ships flying the English flag or that of the allies would do so at their own risk.

This advertisement appeared one week ago, just before the Lusitania sailed.

The Transylvania sailed yesterday,

and it is feared that she may meet a similar fate.

Reports from London are that this disaster is more regretted than anything that has happened since the war began. The British and a great many Americans are wondering how President Wilson will maintain American neutrality.

The British are fast flying to the colors of the empire and the spirit of patriotism at last seems to have been aroused.

CHAIRMAN STONE ADVISES CAUTION

(By United Press)

Washington, May 8.--Chairman
Stone, of the foreign relations committee, in a statement today said that "The Lusitania's destruction is a tragedy of profound regret. If reports are true this is a time for us to use good sense and to keep our heads till we get our bearing. Don't rock the boat. Everybody must do his duty, and there are some facts that we cannot overlook.

"This was a British ship and was flying a British flag and was subject
at any time to be pressed into service.
It also carried military reserves for the army, and it being a British vessel was the same as British soil and is the equality of being inside the walls of a fortified city.

"Aside from the loss of American lives, let us ask ourselves where we come in and that from our stand point
this is not nearly so serious a case
as that of the Gulfst."

Roosevelt Denounces Germans as Pirates

Syracuse, N. Y., May 8.--Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, after learning details of the sinking of the Lusitania late last night made this statement:

"This represents not merely piracy, but piracy on a vaster scale of murder than any old-time pirate ever practiced. This is the warfare which destroyed Louvain and Dinant and hundreds of men, women and children in Belgium. It is warfare against innocent men, women and children, traveling on the ocean, and to our fellow country women, who are among the sufferers.

"It seems inconceivable that we can refrain from taking action in this matter, for we owe it not only to humanity, but to our own national self-respect."

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICES AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

The pastor, Rev. H. R. Bender, requests everybody who can procure a carnation to wear one of the flowers at the morning services at Trinity M. E. church tomorrow. The pastor's morning subject will be "A Mother's Prayer Answered."

In the evening Rev. B. Porter White, Ph. D. of Pittsburgh, will preach on "Child-Saving."

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Woman's club will be held next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 Mrs. E. W.
Hos will talk on "How can Women Prevent the Adulteration of Food?"
"Buying Supplies" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. H. Clark Thayer.

Charged With Firing Through a Window

Harry Strausbaugh, better known as "Hecker," and his brother were arrested last night between 12 and 1 o'clock by Constable Reilly, assisted by Jack Eadie and Jack Dailey,
on a charge of assault and battery
and carrying concealed weapons.

On Thursday night Hecker is alleged to have shot through the window of John Huggill's house, on the Moose creek road, in which were his brother and John Collins and the two Huggill girls. It is supposed that he shot at Collins.

The two Strausbaughs were arrested in the home of their mother and were found in a room with an other brother in one bed with a shot gun in readiness beside them.

They were placed in the borough
lockup and will be given a hearing today.

"Hecker" had just returned from the Western penitentiary on Saturday last.

Murdered Man Was Former Clearfielder

Charles Holes, who figured in a shootout affair in Jersey Shore early yesterday morning and in which he was shot and killed by Lester Poust, went to Jersey Shore from Clearfield.
He was bartender at one of the Jersey Shore hotels.

The shooting was the outcome of jealousy over a girl, Corliss Sowers,
who was also shot and badly wounded
by Poust. Poust then shot himself, dying instantly.

Holes leaves a wife and two children now living in Jersey Shore.

GERMANY MAKES GOOD HER THREAT

When the Lusitania was about to sail for England the German ambassador at Washington issued a warning to prospective passengers on the vessel that they would take the voyage at their own risk. It was believed at the time that this warning emanated in Berlin, and that it was a veiled threat that the Lusitania would be torpedoed by a German submarine.

Yesterday the Lusitania was torpedoed and sunk.

It remains to be learned what view the United States government will take of this latest exhibition of Germany's dislike for and contempt of the American people. Fuller particulars of the sinking of the Lusitania will be awaited with more or less anxiety by the people of the United States, but at present the minds of Americans can contemplate nothing other than that Germany wilfully and maliciously destroyed the ship and placed the lives of her passengers in jeopardy.

As an occurrence by itself the sinking of the Lusitania might be explained away, but taken in connection with the deliberate sinking of neutral vessels without search and without warning and the firing upon the crews of such vessels while they were endeavoring to save themselves from the sea, coupled with general feeling of animosity toward Americans expressed by the German press and the hyphenated residents of the United States, it must look to the American people as if Germany were deliberately seeking a quarrel with this country.

The American administration cannot be blind to the fact that it is its duty to protect American citizens who travel the ocean and to whom passports guaranteeing safe conduct are given by the government. If Great Britain cannot protect her shores from the German submarines it is the sheerest folly to permit American citizens to sail on vessels upon which munitions of war are carried. Germany is determined to prevent the shipment of war material from this country to the allies, and as Germany cannot persuade the American people to aid her by refusing to sell munitions to the allies, Germany takes her own method of preventing the landing of arms and ammunition.

What steps the administration will take in regard to the imperiling of the lives of the thousands of American citizens who sailed on the Lusitania cannot be conjectured. The United States does not want to go to war with Germany, but no country should be allowed to commit outrages against American citizens without being called to account. Judging from the warning issued by Ambassador Bernstorff prior to the sailing of the Lusitania, the fate of that vessel was decided by the Germans long before its departure.

While there was little sentiment in favor of the German caused in this country up to this time, the Lusitania affair has cemented the condemnation felt by Americans of Germany's barbarous war of aggression. And the sinking of the Lusitania is likely to increase instead of diminish the quantity of munitions of war the people of the United States ship to Europe, for every true American will want to do something toward bringing German heathenism and German militarism to an end.

CHANGE THE LOCATION

Members of the grand jury who visited the Clearfield creek bridge which spans that stream between this place and Woodland should have been impressed by the fact that a new location for that structure is demanded in the interests of human safety and comfort. The sharp curve which the road beyond the bridge takes is menacing, especially to occupants of horse-drawn vehicles in these times of fast-moving automobiles.

The bridge should be given a new location and the road straightened in order that the dangerous curve may be eliminated. The matter of the cost of making the change should not stand in the way of the improvement, for no one has a right to place the dollar above the value of human life. If the grand jury recommends the changing of the location of the bridge the county commissioners should act in accordance with the recommendation.

Pity the poor, deluded individual who really imagines that he knows how to run a newspaper, but whose attempts to construct sentences would disgrace a seven-years-old school boy.

Well, it might be a good idea to have game wardens enough so that some of them would find time enough to get into the woods at least two days a week.

Do the officers of the local Wild Life League know whether or not trout streams in this county are being lynamited by fish hogs?

Still, China may get up spunk enough to put the pan on Japan.

LADY LONDONDERRY NOW A COLONEL

England is organizing Women's Volunteer Reserves. The women are taught signalling, dispatch riding, telegraphing, motoring and camp cooking. It has been explained that the corps was for use only in the event of an invasion of England. It is not intended to use the women for aggression, but, as the authorities state, "to arm them for their own defense in the last extremity." It is very different and justifiable. Four companies have already been formed, with Lady Londonderry as Colonel.

Local Option

There are many, very many good citizens in Pennsylvania, men and women too, who are sincerely and honestly in favor of local option—not only in the matter of the liquor question, but in other matters in which they have direct or personal interest.

The right to voice and register one's will appeals with more than ordinary force. It has a home rule flavor, and is a privilege that rebels against restriction.

The design and purpose, therefore, of those good citizens who are sincerely and honestly for local option in the matter of the liquor traffic is far and away from the purposes to which the local option issue has, in the recent past, been put in the state. The issue is being used to promote selfish ambitions. In every campaign it is made an issue to advance the selfish greed of the place-hunters. The issue is cleverly injected into contests for every office from high constable to president of the United States. The candidate for the office, whatever it may be, is lost in the fuss and fury of the contenders who insist upon using a commendable cause for a miserable purpose.

It will be recalled, and probably with reddening of many faces, that a vicious fight was made throughout the state against Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh. The governor went farther for local option than his most ardent supporters had expected. But local option was not the real issue. The purpose was to build an organization that could be handled and used by certain ambitious persons for purely political advantage. The plan was to defeat Dr. Brumbaugh and Senator Penrose, and elect Democrats in their stead. It was not a matter of option in anything but politics. It was not a matter of home rule in anything but in the personal political organization.

Local option in the liquor traffic will never come through selfish channels. It is a moral question, and morals must be regulated by those having clean hands.

The above article is taken from Brother McQuown's Raftsmans Journal of April 28, and all good citizens who were interested in the local option fight should read the article and learn how they and the governor were bamboozled. The hundreds of thousands of petitioners comprised of members of churches, professions and political parties, together with the 5000 or 6000 good citizens who went to Harrisburg at their own expense to advocate the passage of the local option measure should have been warned by Editor McQuown that local option was not the real issue.

It seems a shame that, not only in Clearfield, but throughout the state, so much expense and trouble could have been saved had Editor McQuown given the people this warning that only selfish greed and place hunting were back of the whole scheme. Of course, Editor McQuown in an earlier article told the people error what the duties of the state's chief executive are and are not, but apparently Governor Brumbaugh was not furnished with a copy of the Journal with the article marked, for he went right ahead with his local option fight, and shows no signs of stopping.

It might not be too late yet to have these articles sent to the governor in order that he may see just how differently he looks at moral questions than does Editor McQuown and how much the governor has deviated from the path laid out for a governor by Editor McQuown. The editor's advice might be of benefit to future governors.

Of course, on sober second thought it is wrong to give offices to selfish, greedy men; the offices should be given to unselfish, innocent men who would always do as the liquor interests wanted them to do. Local optionists, are you not ashamed of yourselves that you are so easily beguiled by selfish, greedy place hunters and refuse to place in office men who would see that the people would not have a chance to say whether or not they want liquor selling in their communities?

One of the Bamboozled.

FOUND TIMES HAD CHANGED

Alkali Ike's Attempt to "Shoot Up" San Diego Saloon Received with Marked Disapproval.

Alkali Ike, deputy sheriff from the desert, was a visitor in the city, says a San Diego, Cal., dispatch to the New York Sun. Alkali was looking for the white lights. By noon, having failed to discover the excitement his soul craved, he made his way into the U. S. Grant hotel buffet, and, pulling a "forty-five" that looked like one of the Kaiser's howitzers, announced that he was going to do some "cleaning."

As he swung his Krupp around the room heads dropped behind partitions, active men dodged into booths and many faces paled at visions of sudden death. Commander in Chief Billie Schuler tipped his cigar to a higher angle than usual and, backed by Irish and Germans, advanced on "the bad man from the sand hills."

For an instant visions of carnage flashed before his eyes of the men who had sought refuge, but it quickly passed, for Schuler annexed the cannon and threw Alkali Ike to the sidewalk. Half an hour later the fire-eater was back begging with tears streaming down his face for his weapon.

"I'll be on my way to the sand hills in five minutes," he promised as he got back his gun.

Lesson VI.—Second Quarter, For May 9, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xx, 32-42. Memory Verse, 42—Golden Text, Prov. xvii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our lesson topic today is "The Friendship of David and Jonathan," but the lesson verses give only one incident out of many. As our next lesson will be in chapter xxiv, we will consider the David and Jonathan incidents in chapters xviii to xxiii. In chapter xiv the name of Jonathan is mentioned twenty-four times, and in chapter xx it is found twenty-seven times. His name may mean the gift of Jehovah, and he surely was such to David, a real friend and comforter, making us think of Paul's words concerning some of his helpers, "Fellow workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me" (Col. iv, 11). In our first introduction to Jonathan (chapters xiii and xiv), in which we find his name just twenty-eight times, we see him as a brave soldier, relying upon Jehovah to fight for him and with him (xiv, 9, 10). The next mention of him is after David's defeat of Goliath, when we read that his soul was knit with the soul of David, for he loved him as his own soul. He stripped himself of his garments and armor and put them upon David (chapter xviii, 1-4; see also xx, 17; I Sam. i, 26). They were truly kindred spirits, both strong in the Lord. We cannot but think of Him who emptied Himself for us, laid aside all His glory, that He might redeem us, clothe us with His righteousness and share with us His Kingdom. We think also of the disciple whom Jesus loved, who leaned upon his bosom, but we remember what is written in John xiii, 1, of all true disciples, "He loved them unto the end, to the uttermost" (R. V., margin).

The next incident is in chapter xix, 1-7, where Jonathan pleaded with his father for David, reminding him that through David the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel, and so David was for a time restored to Saul's favor, but we saw in last lesson how worthless and uncertain it was.

In our lesson chapter we see David returning from Samuel (to whom he had fled) to interview Jonathan and to tell him that when near Saul he felt that there was but a step between him and death and to ask him to find out if he could just how his father really felt toward him, for it would seem as if David could scarcely believe that Saul hated him as greatly as these sudden outbreaks of temper would indicate. One may give way to temper again and again and yet really love the person spoken or acted against. How beautiful was Jonathan's reply to David, "Whosoever the Lord desireth I will even do it for thee" (xx, 4), or as in the margin, "Say what is thy mind, what thy soul speaketh or thinketh, and I will do it." What a friend to have and yet listen to him who calls us friends, "If ye shall ask anything in My name I will do it" (John xv, 15; xiv, 14). Jonathan seems not to have believed up to this time that his father meant any real harm to David, probably attributing all to his fearful temper, for he said, "If I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee would not I tell it thee?" (xx, 9). They went out into the field alone with the Lord and with prayer, and, as in His sight, they made a covenant the one with the other and arranged a plan by which Jonathan would find out certainly what his father's attitude to David really was (xx, 11-23). When the plan was worked out and Saul's anger against David became so manifest that he tried to kill Jonathan for taking David's part, then Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David. So he arose from the table in fierce anger, for he was grieved for David (xx, 32-34). Then Jonathan in the morning went out into the field and communicated with David by a pre-arranged plan (xx, 34-40).

It was a three days' interval (verse 19), reminding us of so many three days' stories, and it was a morning farewell that these two friends now had (verse 36), reminding us by analogy and contrast of so many morning stories. The statement in verse 33 that the lad who gathered the arrows knew not anything of the significance of Jonathan's words to him has often come to me with power, as I have given His message from His word from time to time, simply knowing that I was seeking to be faithful to him, but not knowing anything of what He might be accomplishing by the message, but sure always that He knew what He was doing and that His word will always accomplish His pleasure (John vi, 6; Isa. lv, 11). How pathetic the farewell of these two after the lad had gone—the kissing, the weeping, the committing of each other to the Lord, and Jonathan's "Go in peace" (verses 41, 42). In the morning to which we look forward we shall be "forever with the Lord" (I Thess. iv, 17). What a contrast to this sad parting and all partings! They met once more, and Jonathan strengthened David in God, and they spoke of the kingdom and renewed their covenant (xxiii, 16-18).

What God does or permits to be done is often to us a great mystery, but there is comfort in His words, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter" (John xiii, 7).

The defendant was put through a long, hard ordeal, as he testified from 10 o'clock this morning until 2:15 this afternoon. He answered most questions in a satisfactory manner, although at times he added little details which proved damaging.

One of these was that if he ever said that he would kill his wife it was only in a joking way.

His niece, Domineci Damatanna, gave some evidence after the defendant left the stand that was anything but satisfactory to the defense. She said that in the fight or quarrel that took place in which the butcher knife figured so prominently she was preparing to make some sandwiches and was going to cut bread, while other witnesses previously swore that she told at the county home a few weeks ago that if she hadn't taken the butcher knife from Joe he would have killed Regina then.

Counsel for both sides rested, all evidence being submitted. Court then adjourned for 10 minutes before beginning the addresses to the jury, and the charge of the court. A verdict will likely be rendered some time this evening or tomorrow.

foundered, going down how foremost. It was a dreadful sight. Two other steamers with survivors are approaching Queenstown.

Wounded Point in Explosion

Although information from Ireland allowed to be made public is very entirely fragmentary, little by little it is becoming known that either by an external or internal explosion entirely fragmentary, the giant ship was blown almost apart yesterday afternoon off Old Head of Kinsale.

A double explosion is mentioned because there is a theory advanced that the external explosion of a great torpedo smashed into the ship without warning by the submarine, caused an interior explosion. This may have been in some nest of boilers, or it may have been among explosives in the cargo.

The wounded who are going to the naval hospital and the dead who were brought ashore indicate that there was enormous havoc in the interior of the vessel. This may have been in the fire room or in the engine room. It cannot be conceived that passengers could be hurt in this way.

The Lusitania, swinging northeast of Cape Clear, came in sight of the Irish coast early yesterday morning and started north for St. George's channel. She was going at full speed, some shipping men believe that she was up to 25 knots, some even saying 26 knots, which is her trial speed limit.

She was proceeding in the Irish sea, with her life boats swung outward on their davits ready for immediate use and all her watertight bulkheads and compartments tightly closed.

Lusitania Hit Without Warning

There is no doubt that she was hit without warning. Liverpool shipping men have announced that Capt. Turner would not think of stopping for any German submarine, but would rely on his speed the moment he saw a periscope. It could only be chance that a torpedo would strike home unless there were a number of the undersized boats in line, each of which would discharge a torpedo in her path. None could stop her, none could keep up with her.

After the early morning report of the Lusitania nothing was heard officially at any of the wireless stations until shortly after 2 o'clock, when the wireless operator at Lands End, Ireland, caught this hurriedly:

"Come at once. Big list. Position 10 miles south of Kinsale."

That was all that ever came out of the ship, so far as can be learned. It would not have been sufficient to have blown up the boilers to stop this work, for the emergency batteries were there to work with.

Submarine Attacked and Wrecked Vessel Without a Moment's Warning

SUNK TEN MINUTES AFTER BEING STRUCK

Conflicting Rumors of Total Loss of Life, But It is Believed That of the 2067 Souls on Board Less Than 1000 Escaped a Watery Grave--Survivors Endure Hardships and Suffering From Which Some are Said to Have Died After Being Landed--There Were 188 Americans Among the Passengers, But Whether All of These Were Saved Has Not Yet Been Ascertained--Latest News of the Catastrophe.

(By United Press)

London, May 8.--While Germany is elated over the sweeping success of her submarine warfare in the sinking of the Lusitania, all England stands appalled at the terrible disaster.

LOSS OF LIFE MAY TOTAL 1300

The loss of life of the great liner Lusitania may reach more than 1300.

Only 700 have been rescued up to this time from the water around old Kinsale head, where the vessel was twice torpedoed by undersea boats.

Dispatches of the latest figures are:

Total on board	2049
Total rescued	703

Americans Among the Missing

No list of survivors contains the names of Alfred Vanderbilt, Charles Froman, Charles Klein and Elbert Hubbard.

An enormous crowd besieged the office of the Cunard line all night and increase at daybreak inquiring for lost friends or relatives.

Ship Should Have Been Protected

Many of them angrily asked why the vessel had no escort of torpedo destroyers in view of the fact that they were warned that the vessel would be torpedoed.

Lord Charles Beresford will question Premier Asquith on the sinking of the Lusitania and why there was no escort of destroyers.

Many Die of Shock

Many naval boats are patrolling the sea in search of bodies, but this is distressful work now.

The list of deaths has been increased by more than a score at Queenstown among those who were rescued, on account of shock and collapse.

German People Rejoice

Copenhagen despatches say that Berlin newspapers told in head lines of colossal type of the sinking of the Lusitania.

The editorials point out that Germany believes that England received just what she deserved.

The tug Storm Cock has returned to Queenstown, bringing about 150 survivors of the Lusitania, principally passengers, among whom were many women, several of the crew and one steward.

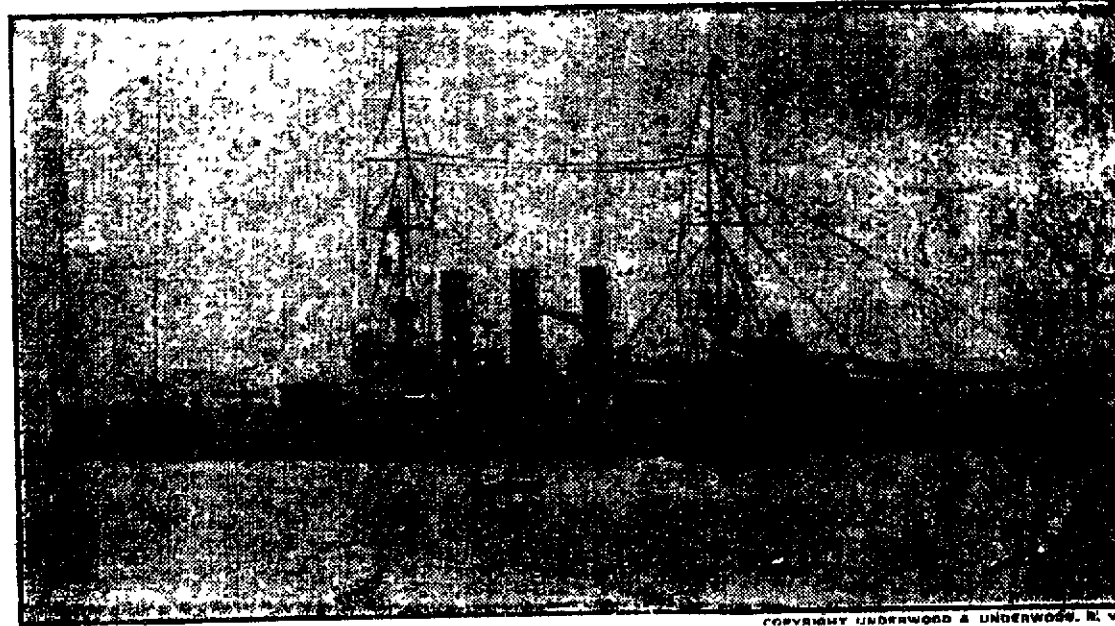

Describing the experience of the Lusitania the steward said:

"The passengers were at lunch when a submarine came up and fired two torpedoes, which struck the Lusitania on the starboard side, one forward and the other in the engine room. They caused terrific explosions.

Passengers Take to Boats

"Captain Turner immediately ordered the boats out. The ship began to list badly immediately.

and 500 passengers entered them. The boat in which I was, approached the land with three other boats and we were picked up shortly after 4 o'clock by the Storm Cock.

New York, May 8.--Cunard line officials announced the receipt of advices that Captain Turner, First Officer Jones, Second Officer Lewis, the second and third engineers and 51 members of the crew have been rescued.

Steamer New York Has Not Been Sunk

(By United Press)

London, May 8.--American line officials this afternoon scouted the rumor that the steamship New York, of their line, had been torpedoed.

They said they were not worried in the least and that the excitement was due to the worry and anxiety arising from the destruction of Lusitania.

Later despatches received by them say that the New York is safe in the Irish sea.

And the President Goes Golfing Today

(By United Press)

Washington, May 8.--The state department today asked Ambassador Page at London for a report of the sinking of the Lusitania based on a statement of the captains of the submarine who made the attack.

President Goes Golfing

As there was no cabinet meeting today, President Wilson went golfing at 9 a. m. The police headquarters had no call from the German embassy for special protection, but is keeping a close watch on the situation.

Cabinet members and high officials were unanimous in declaring that this only increased their hatred for the premeditated murderers.

WINDING UP THE EVIDENCE IN THE PELLERTI CASE

Commonwealth Believed to Have Made Out a Strong Case Against Prisoner

Dr. Pollum Shows That the Woodland Woman Died of Strangulation--Charles Pellerti Testifies That He Had Heard Joe Make Threats Against His Wife.

When the court resumed the trial of Joe Pellerti for the alleged murder of his wife at the home of his brother, Charles, on the night of April 13-14 last, yesterday after the noon recess, the first witness called by the commonwealth was Dr. Pollum, county coroner, who had charge of the inquest. The doctor testified as to the normality of the different parts and organs of the body and named three evidences of violence having been used. These were that there was a hemorrhage of the capillaries between the epidermis and the blood in one ear, and that there was blood in one ear, and that there was a bad clot of blood on the night eye.

The counsel for the defense gave the doctor a thorough cross-examination as to the evidences of strangulation generally, to which the doctor replied very clearly that there were no fixed characteristics, but he felt quite certain that the death of Mrs. Pellerti was the result of strangulation, though none of the elements offered by the defense were present in the case.

Dr. J. W. Gordon, of this city, who assisted Dr. Pollum, gave practically the same information as the coroner.

Mrs. Charles Pellerti, who is an American was then called upon and testified that she and Joe had not been friendly since shortly after her marriage to Charles, as Joe had opposed Charles marrying her.

Joe's brother Charles gave some damaging evidence against the prisoner when he told of having heard him make threats against his wife. Tony Pellerti was the next witness presented by the commonwealth and he testified to being called to the house at about 9 o'clock in the morning and told of the position of the body as it lay in the bed, and also told of seeing cloth or handkerchiefs around her head and neck.

Several men who boarded with Charles told of how they had heard Joe threaten the life of his wife and that "if she didn't kill herself, he would."

A woman who lived in the same double house with them at Leland, which is near Utahville, testified as to her having heard them quarrel and in the night heard Rosa crying.

This morning court began at 8:45 that the trial might be hurried today. The witnesses who were called were Sheriff McCloskey, Dr. Pollum, Mrs. Charles Pellerti and Joe's wife, of whom it is hinted that Rosa was jealous.

The commonwealth then rested and the plan of defense was set forth to the jury by W. C. Miller, Esq. The prisoner himself was then called to

Fear the Transylvania Will Meet Similar Fate

New York, May 8.--The German embassy re-advised in New York papers today that travel to Great Britain and France was dangerous and that all persons taking passage on ships flying the English flag or that of the allies would do so at their own risk.

The Transylvania sailed yesterday,

and it is feared that she may meet a similar fate.

Reports from London are that this disaster is more regretted than anything that has happened since the war began. The British and a great many Americans are wondering how President Wilson will maintain American neutrality.

The British are fast flying to the colors of the empire and the spirit of patriotism at last seems to have been aroused.

CHAIRMAN STONE ADVISES CAUTION

(By United Press)

Washington, May 8.--Chairman Stone, of the foreign relations committee, in a statement today said that "The Lusitania's destruction is a tragedy of profound regret. If reports are true this is a time for us to use good sense and to keep our heads till we get our bearings. Don't rock the boat. Everybody must do his duty, and there are some facts that we cannot overlook."

"This was a British ship and was flying a British flag and was subject at any time to be pressed into service. It also carried military reserves for the army, and it being a British vessel was the same as British soil and is the equality of being inside the walls of a fortified city."

"Aside from the loss of American lives, let us ask ourselves where we come in and that from our stand point this is not nearly so serious a case as that of the Gulfst."

Roosevelt Denounces Germans as Pirates

Syracuse, N. Y., May 8.--Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, after learning details of the sinking of the Lusitania late last night made this statement:

"This represents not merely piracy, but piracy on a vaster scale of murder than any old-time pirate ever practiced. This is the warfare which destroyed Louvain and Dinant and hundreds of men, women and children in Belgium. It is warfare against innocent men, women and children, traveling on the ocean, and to our fellow country women, who are among the sufferers."

"It seems inconceivable that we can refrain from taking action in this matter, for we owe it not only to humanity, but to our own national self-respect."

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICES AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

The pastor, Rev. H. R. Bender, requests everybody who can procure a carnation to wear one of the flowers at the morning services at Trinity M. E. church tomorrow. The pastor's morning subject will be "A Mother's Prayer Answered."

In the evening Rev. B. Porter White, Ph. D. of Pittsburgh, will preach on "Child-Saving."

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Woman's club will be held next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 Mrs. E. W. Hoes will talk on "How can Women Prevent the Adulteration of Food?"

"Buying Supplies" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. H. Clark Thayer.

MOTHER'S DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Mother's Day, which will be observed generally tomorrow, was originated seven years ago by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia. Miss Jarvis' suggestion that Mother be honored once a year at least was taken up by congress, which gave its sanction to the occasion.

The usual custom of honoring Mother is by wearing carnations, white ones, if possible, but any color if white cannot be procured. Every son and daughter should signify their approval of the day and their respect for Mother by wearing a carnation in her honor tomorrow. In addition to wearing the carnation children should make a special effort to prove to their mothers, if these be still living, that they appreciate her self-sacrifices, love and patience.

Mother's day will be observed in the churches, many of which will have special programs for the occasion.

CITIZENS WILL WORK ON ROADS

"Good Roads Day" To be Observed On May 26

PUBLIC CAN ASSIST

Clearfield County's Highways Should be Made the Best in Pennsylvania

Central Executive Committee Will

Formulate Plans for Road Improvement--County to be Divided Into Districts and Township Supervisors and Local Committees in Each Township Will Carry on the Good Work.

Following the policy adopted by Governor Brumbaugh in his plan and by his actions since becoming chief executive of the commonwealth, May 26 has been set aside as "Good Roads Day" throughout the state. This method of road improvement has been tried in other states, and has always produced excellent and lasting results.

In the governor's proclamation he has called upon all citizens of the commonwealth to assist in the undertaking and has ordered the state highway department to give assistance possible.

Nightmen Volunteers--Fifteen of the enthusiastic road advocates of this community have volunteered to serve as a central executive committee, which will have charge of all arrangements. Appointment of this committee will be held on Monday, May 10, in the office of W. D. Meyers, assistant engineer, state highway department in the Clearfield Trust Co. building. At this meeting the committee will confer with the officers of the Township Supervisors association and plans will be formulated and will be published in this paper on Tuesday, May 11.

Will District County--The county will be divided into districts and local committees appointed to take charge of the work in their respective localities. It will be their duty to superintend the work of the men who volunteer for service in their section and place the road assigned to them in as good condition as possible. The roads to be worked upon will be designated by the executive committee. This committee now takes the opportunity of calling on all citizens of this county to assist and co-operate in this work, as it is only by the co-operation of each and every individual that an undertaking of so great and far-reaching a character can be a success.

Keep up Good Work--While "Good Roads Day" will be observed in the letter on May 26, the spirit should be observed every day. Let each man who volunteers to work on this date resolve that he will make this event a memorable one. Let him also resolve that he will have more "Good Roads Days" and not observe them only on days appointed by the governor or any other official of the state county or township, but appoint the day himself. If there be a day or part of a day when you have nothing to occupy your time go out on the road and do a little work for the traveling public. This will cause you no great inconvenience and will be a benefit to a large number.

AMUSEMENTS

Wm. Farnum in Samson
William Farnum, the celebrated actor, who pleased a big audience last Monday night at the opera house when he played the principal part in "The Gilded Fool," will be presented again on Monday, May 10, in a strong play of love and finance called "Samson." In this picture Farnum plays the part of a dock laborer, who, through his strength and ability, has risen to be the greatest power in the money world. He has fallen in love with a beautiful girl, who marries him to save the fortunes of her family and who really despises him. His wife has an intrigue with a disreputable man, who has made his fortune through her husband, who discovers her affections and resolves on revenge. He does this through his power of finance and pulls down the structure that his wealth and ability has reared, ruining himself with the others who have been living off his ability. After the ruin the wife sees the true character of her husband and her love turns to love.

Take Care of the Babies

"The health of the community and lives of the babies depend upon the milk supply. When the milk is produced from dairies where great care and cleanliness are exercised the people can feel safe in using it," said the Doctor. G. R. Schnarr, 218 Reed street, handles only milk produced by model dairy farms conducted on modern scientific principles with every known device to secure purity in the product. He obtains it fresh every day from the country. G. R. Schnarr's plant is equipped with the necessary machinery and appliances for complete pasteurization. "The popular understanding of the meaning of the word 'pasteurized' is about as intelligent as the definition of the city girl," said the Doctor. "When visiting the country for the first time, she saw some animals in a field and asked her father what they were. 'They are cows in a pasture,' replied her father. 'Oh, yes, that is where we get our pasteurized milk from,' she exclaimed." "The word 'pasteurized' is named after Dr. Lewis Pasteur of France, the greatest bacteriologist of his day," said the Doctor. "He first introduced the process of destroying the bacteria in milk, those little minute pests that bring disease and death in their wake." The process of pasteurization pursued by G. R. Schnarr is recommended by U. S. government experts. It consists of heating the milk to 140 degrees f.h. of better and holding at the same temperature for thirty minutes, and then gradually cooling to normal, without disturbing the milk, it is then placed in sterilized bottles and absolute safety is assured. Sterilized bottles are always used, whether the milk is pasteurized or fresh creamy milk direct from a first class dairy.

WILLS MADE IN WAR TIME

Legal Procedure Must of Necessity Give Way to What is Convenient.

War changes many of the laws of peace. Even the strict laws governing the making of wills and the inheritance of property have had to make way before the exigencies of military procedure.

The German government has provided a special decree which revolutionizes the strict demands of the statutes of peace concerning the making of wills. As a result the German soldiers in the field can now make their last wills with little respect for the ironclad requirements that hedge the making of a testament in time of peace.

Any officer or soldier or even anyone in any wise attached to the mobile military service, may write his will in his own handwriting and sign it, even without the presence of witnesses, and the will is binding. A special provision, however, makes such a will invalid one year after the demobilization of the force to which the testator is attached. It becomes invalid a year after the testator has been discharged from such service, or if he has been taken prisoner by the enemy, a year after he shall have been released.

In addition to this, provision is made that where the soldier does not write the testament in his own handwriting, his simple signature in the presence of one officer or two other witnesses will be sufficient. If for any reason he is unable to do this, or there is no time for the preparation of a formal instrument, he may make a verbal testament before an officer and two witnesses.

Miss Marian Bigler announces that she has opened a Studio in the New Mossop building where she will receive pupils for vocal instructions.

Miss Bigler will be glad to discuss method, training, terms, etc., with anyone that is interested. For appointment call Bell Phone 122-R. H. & C. Phone 336.

Ancient Weapons of War.
The ancient catapult, of which the Austrians tried a modern version at Belgrade, was, strictly speaking, an engine that threw darts—a sort of machine-gun. The engine that threw stones, weighing from two pounds up to three hundredweight, was the ballista. But the two terms were in time confronted and loosely used. According to Josephus, the ballista could throw stones a quarter of a mile. All these machines were worked by twisted hair, thongs and vegetable fibres. And the most tantalizing passage in the classics is Aristotle's allusion, in speaking of acts for which a man cannot be held wholly responsible to "the man who let off the catapult by accident."

Sorrows of the War.
They tell a story about a Miss Schumann Heine's engagement in Philadelphia recently that shows how the war in Europe brings trouble to many people far from it. The fiancée of her daughter had just had her jaw shot off and had been word to her to break off the news so her daughter and also to notify her that she released her from her engagement. The great news put more feeling into her songs those who heard her said that never before her breaking heart proving no bar to what she considered her duty.

DENOUNCED ACT OF CHARITY

Butchers of French Town Saw Damage to Their Interests in Gift of Philanthropist.

A little drama portraying the conflict of patriotism with private interests is now in action, says Le Cri de Paris, on a little island in the Seine, opposite Maisons-Laffitte. Monsieur Leigh, a well-known turfman, who until recently has been an American, but is now a naturalized Frenchman, "rounding the cape of sixty years," has been raising some fine pigs on his little island—handsome, high-bred, black porkers, which came to him by express from the Ivory coast. Filled with the ecst of patriotism and benevolence, Monsieur Leigh said to the mayor of Maisons: "Monsieur, you have public soup-houses for the unfortunate. I will give you for soup a pig each week until the end of hostilities."

A fine pig is worth from one hundred to one hundred and fifty francs, and he was a handsome present, and the donor was warmly thanked for his generosity.

Then it was that the pork butchers of the village intervened: "This animal," they said, "that Leigh gives for nothing, the mayor had bought, perhaps from us. We'll cease to furnish meat to that man Leigh. We'll boycott the Leigh pigs."

M. Leigh came back at them. He said to the drummer of the village: "Announce everywhere that I will set up a pork butcher myself in the market place, and will sell my pigs to the public at 25 per cent less than these envious fellows."

M. Leigh did as he said. Each market day there is a rush of the population to the stand of his pork butcher, which has become the object of general favor. Following this the philanthropist has been threatening many letters, some of them threatening to burn his stables. "And," says Le Cri, "this is how human nature recompenses one who proposed to do good with his own money."

testify in his own behalf and at one time broke down completely and wept.

The defendant was put through a long, hard ordeal, as he testified from 10 o'clock this morning until 2:15 this afternoon. He answered most questions in a satisfactory manner, although at times he added little details which proved damaging.

One of these was that if he ever said that he would kill his wife it was only in a joking way.

His niece, Domineci Damatanna, gave some evidence after the defendant left the stand that was anything but satisfactory to the defense. She said that in the fight or quarrel that took place in which the butcher knife figured so prominently she was preparing to make some sandwiches and was going to cut bread, while other witnesses previously swore that she told at the county home a few weeks ago that if she hadn't taken the butcher knife from Joe he would have killed Regina then.

Counsel for both sides rested, all evidence being submitted. Court then adjourned for 10 minutes before beginning the addresses to the jury, and the charge of the court. A verdict will likely be rendered some time this evening or tomorrow.

Man Is Best After 60.

"Investigation by keen men has shown that man's best work has been done between the ages of sixty and seventy years," said President E. R. Bryan of Colgate university, Eugene, Ore., in an address before the Western division of the Oregon Teachers' association. "Six hundred of the most important scientists, statesmen and Old World famous men were selected," he said, "and it was found that only 5 per cent of them accomplished their world's work before the age of forty, 10 per cent between forty and fifty, 25 per cent fifty and sixty, 35 per cent between sixty and seventy, 21 per cent after they had reached the age of eighty."

1346 LIVES LOST WHEN LUSITANIA WAS SUNK

foundered, going down how foremost. It was a dreadful sight. Two other steamers with survivors are approaching Queenstown.

Wounded Point in Explosion
Although information from Ireland allowed to be made public is very entirely fragmentary, little by little it is becoming known that either by an external or internal explosion entirely fragmentary, the giant ship was blown almost apart yesterday afternoon off Old Head of Kinsale. A double explosion is mentioned because there is a theory advanced that the external explosion of a great torpedo smashed into the ship without warning by the submarine, caused an interior explosion. This may have been in some nest of boilers, or it may have been among explosives in the cargo. The wounded who are going to the naval hospital and the dead who were brought ashore indicate that there was enormous havoc in the interior of the vessel. This may have been in the fire room or in the engine room. It cannot be conceived that passengers could be hurt in this way.

The Lusitania, swinging northeast of Cape Clear, came in sight of the Irish coast early yesterday morning and started north for St. George's channel. She was going at full speed, some shipping men believe that she was up to 25 knots, some even saying 26 knots, which is her trial speed limit. She was proceeding in the Irish sea, with her life boats swung outward on their davits ready for immediate use and all her watertight bulkheads and compartments tightly closed.

There is no doubt that she was hit without warning. Liverpool shipping men have announced that Capt. Turner would not think of stopping for any German submarine, but would rely on his speed the moment he saw a periscope. It could only be chance that a torpedo would strike home unless there were a number of the undersized boats in line, each of which would discharge a torpedo in her path. None could stop her, none could keep up with her.

After the early morning report of the Lusitania nothing was heard officially at any of the wireless stations until shortly after 2 o'clock, when the wireless operator at Lands End, Ireland, caught this hurriedly:

"Come at once. Big list. Position 10 miles south of Kinsale."

That was all that ever came out of the ship, so far as can be learned. It would not have been sufficient to have blown up the boilers to stop this work, for the emergency batteries were there to work with.
